APRIL 1

St. Paul, March 23.—(UP)—More than 20,000 men will be put to work within the next two weeks by northwestern railroads, estimates by railroad chiefs here disclosed today.

The railroad monthly payroll increase will average $3,000,000, it was estimated.

Maintenance work already has been started by several of the railroads and it is expected that the complete summer force will be on the payroll by April 1.

The Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads, it is estimated by officials, will employ about 15,000 men for their maintenance work, which is possible only during the spring and summer months.

With the construction of engine terminals at Fargo and Grand Forks by the Great Northern, much of the labor required will have a noticeable effect on the local employment situation, it is said.

The average monthly pay of this additional labor is estimated at $150. With 20,000 men, this would make the monthly payroll about $3,000,000 and for the summer it would reach a total of at least $24,000,000.

FRANTIC EFFORT TO CAPTURE THE
'TERRIBLE BEAR'

Columbia, Mo., March 23.—(UP)—A frantic effort was made by police and citizens here today to capture "The Terrible Bear" who wrote a letter to Dr. H. H. Buescher, a dentist, and demanded $1,000 under threat to kidnap his six-year-old daughter if the money was not paid.

A man believed to be "The Bear" eluded a posse after a chase on the University of Missouri campus last night. The man had accosted Don Cassidy, 12 years old, but was frightened away when the lad's older brother appeared on the scene.

It also was revealed by F. M. Carl, a motor car salesman, that his 11-year-old daughter had been approached by a stranger who gave the girl notes asking her teacher to dismiss her from school. The notes bore the forged signature of the girl's father.

Police believe the man who demanded money of Dr. Buescher also wrote the notes deposited with Carl's daughter. The letter to Dr. Buescher was signed "The Terrible Bear."

COL. LINDBERGH

Washington, March 23.—(UP)—Everybody wants to fly with Lindbergh. His invitation to congress already has been accepted by 310 members and relatives who have been taken aloft in three days, and 200 to 300 more applications received will keep him busy today and Saturday in piloting sight-seeing airplanes over Washington.

Still as woman-shy as when he was an unknown airmail pilot, Charles Lindbergh is a little abashed at the many women who have come in response to his congressional invitations. Six members of one representative's family went aloft with Lindbergh yesterday.

The flyer carried 149 persons on 17 trips yesterday by employing two huge transport planes, one of which was being filled with passengers while he was driving the other. Even a threatened storm and one instance of being mired failed to halt his speed. One of the big planes became stuck in the mud when Lindbergh had to halt to allow a squadron of army bombing planes to land.

JOHN INFANTINO CALLED FOR

MURDER

FOUND KNEELING AT HIS BED-SIDE, THREE BULLETS IN HEART

Chicago, March 23.—(UP)—John Infantino, 30, who was to have been called for questioning in the murder of "Diamond Joe" Esposito, was shot to death in the bedroom of his home here early today.

Infantino, a cousin of "Samoots" Amatura, who was assassinated a year ago, was found kneeling at the side of his bed. He had been shot three times through the heart.

It was recalled that a man named Infantino had been named as one of several men who had held a conference with Diamond Joe recently. Police believe he may have known something of the shooting of Esposito Wednesday night, and that he had been done away with to prevent his "telling too much."

"Diamond Joe"—who derived his name from the fortune in diamonds he habitually wore—was ambushed in front of his home Wednesday night and died with 58 shotgun slugs and revolver bullets in his body and head.

Two bodyguards who were with him at his death were questioned and released.

Chicago, March 23.—A feud which started more than 30 years ago in the vineyards of Sicily and developed bitterness in Chicago when its principals competed in politics and business was blamed by police today for the slaying of "Diamond Joe" Esposito.

James De Prisco was said by Chief of Detectives Michael Grady to have full knowledge of the slaying. Di Prisco and the Esposito boys were together in Sicily and worked side by side in vineyards there. At first they were friends. One day, Grady said, they fought with knives, but were separated before either was badly hurt.

They came to Chicago. Esposito prospered in business, grew influential in politics and finally made a fortune as so many of his countrymen have in Chicago in recent years. Di Prisco failed where his rival succeeded. He had difficulty making a living, and was a hanger-on at the fringe of gangs.

Eighteen months ago Di Prisco was wounded in a gang war flareup. At first he blamed Di Esposito, but when the latter was taken to a hospital to face his accuser, Di Prisco changed his story and absolved the man he hated.

Di Prisco and four other men were under arrest today in connection with the slaying of Esposito, but it was on Di Prisco that police concentrated their inquiry.

Washington, March 23.—(UP)—The senate coal investigating committee went to the top of the bituminous industry today for information on the mine strike. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., of the Consolidation Coal Company, R. B. Mellon of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, and Charles M. Schwab, of the Bethlehem Mines Corporation, appeared before the committee.

Schwab was the first to testify. The official story of the sinking of the S-4—one of the nation's great tragedies—probably will be ended today.

Investigators who went into the battered hulk of the once great undersea craft—which sank after being rammed by the coast guard destroyer Paulding—expected to complete answers to the 250 questions presented them. An official report will be sent the navy department and then with burials of the last 8 men removed, the incident probably will be closed.

Yesterday the investigators found another note written by one of the crew, who while trapped in the undersea coffin awaited the noxious gas that eventually would cause death.

The note was written by Roger L. Short, Booneville, Mo., one of the six men in the torpedo room. It was on a small metal box, written in pencil, and read:

"In case of my death, please send entire contents of box to my mother, Mrs. M. G. Short, 804 Spring Street, Booneville, Mo. Roger L. Short."

There was no hint of those last hours when the man waited and prayed for rescue, and listened to their leader, Lieut. Graham Fitch, tap out pleading messages to the rescuers.

In the tin box was found two bank books and a bill fold containing $52, an express check book containing $30 in checks and $40 in cash. There were some medals and other personal belongings.

Short was serving his fourth enlistment when he died. He had seen service in the Mexican, Haitian and world war campaigns and once had been awarded a good conduct medal.

"I have never made one dollar out of the Bethlehem Steel Company. I have been a work of love. I hope I have left the conditions of the workers improved."

Schwab said he would be willing to meet with union officials and a senate committee to attempt a solution of the coal problem if he was not thereby "bound to any agreement."

"We have reports showing serious conditions in your town of Ellsworth, W. Va.," Senator Gooding said. "Do you know anything about that?"

"I can't believe it," Schwab replied, "but I shall find out. I shall go there myself. Our workers must be taken care of."

"I don't believe anything can be done and demand is still in force. We must get at the fundamental—understanding between employer and employee."

Schwab said present laws preventing co-ordination of industry are partly responsible for the condition of the coal industry.

PAIR WERE CONVICTED OF KILL-

DRIVER

By JAMES R. KELLY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Valley Field, Que., March 23.—George McDonald was hanged on the flaming red gallows at Bordeaux prison at dawn today, paying with his life for a murder he and his wife both admitted.

The wife, Doris, escaped a like fate when her death sentence—which was to have been carried out simultaneously with that of her husband—was commuted to life imprisonment Wednesday. She was in her cell at the women's prison at Montreal as her husband calmly went to death.

They were convicted of killing Adelard Bouchard, a Lachine, Que., taxi-cab driver.

McDonald was executed at 5:37 A. M.

The execution had been planned for earlier in the morning but last minute rites, under the Canadian custom, delayed it for almost an hour.

The convicted man was calm and said he was ready for death. Only once yesterday did his composure break. That was when he was about to say a final goodbye to his 73-year-old father, Jack McDonald of Sydney, N. S.

They wept and finally had to be separated by guards.

The condemned man's entire family had been here to visit him. His mother and sister came from Portland, Me., and with the father left last night for Montreal, hoping to arrange some last minute reprieve.

Only the officials required for the execution were present. Even the jury was not permitted in the death chamber. The jury will be composed of local physicians. They will hold their inquest at 8 A. M.

Then the body was to be reclaimed by McDonald's family.

The McDonalds—George and Doris—came to Montreal last summer. They lived gaily here and George, authorities said, became involved in a series of petty crimes. He and his young wife decided to leave Canada.

They engaged Adelard Bouchard and were said to have told him: "Bring plenty of money for we are going on a long trip and you will need it for gas and the customs collectors."

Bouchard complied and was said to have had $800 in his pockets when he started on his last drive.

The next heard of the McDonalds was when they arrived at the Canadian border with a third man—never yet apprehended or identified—and were turned back by customs authorities.

The customs officials noticed the McDonalds, particularly the young woman.

Then Bouchard's taxi-cab was found in Montreal. A search was started and the body of the taxi-cab driver was found in a ditch near the border.

The province was keenly excited. Bouchard had been well known. He had been popular among a certain clientele in Montreal and in Lachine, Que., his home town.

Provincial police circularized the continent with pictures of the McDonalds and finally at Butte, Mont., the man and woman were arrested. The second man was not with them.

They were taken to Denver and while awaiting extradition Mrs. McDonald told Bert Clark, a Denver detective, her version of the murder. She blamed the mysterious second man as the motivating agent of the murder and then told how, in order to make good escape, she killed the taxi-cab driver.

This confession subsequently was said to have led to a cooling of the ardor between McDonald and his young wife. He never quite forgave her for confessing, detectives said.

The two were brought here and tried. On December 17 they were found guilty and sentenced to death. Immediately there were pleas for clemency. The first of the pleas started in the United States and

Two bodyguards who were with him at his death were questioned and released.

Chicago, March 23.—A feud which started more than 30 years ago in the vineyards of Sicily and developed bitterness in Chicago when its principals competed in politics and business was blamed by police today for the slaying of "Diamond Joe" Esposito.

James De Prioso was said by Chief of Detectives Michael Grady to have full knowledge of the slaying. Di Prioso and the Esposito boys were together in Sicily and worked side by side in vineyards there. At first they were friends. One day, Grady said, they fought with knives, but were separated before either was badly hurt.

They came to Chicago. Esposito prospered in business, grew influential in politics and finally made a fortune as so many of his countrymen have in Chicago in recent years. Di Prioso failed where his rival succeeded. He had difficulty making a living, and was a hanger-on at the fringe of gangs.

Eighteen months ago Di Prioso was wounded in a gang war flareup. At first he blamed Di Esposito, but when the latter was taken to a hospital to face his accuser, Di Prioso changed his story and absolved the man he hated.

Di Prioso and four other men were under arrest today in connection with the slaying of Esposito, but it was on Di Prioso that police concentrated their inquiry.

LIEVE IN COLLECTIVE BAR-GAINING

Washington, March 23.—(UP)—The senate coal investigating committee went to the top of the bituminous industry today for information on the mine strike. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., of the Consolidation Coal Company, R. B. Mellon of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, and Charles M. Schwab, of the Bethlehem Mines Corporation, appeared before the committee.

Schwab was the first to testify.

Washington, March 23.—Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, told senate coal investigators today he is primarily interested in the welfare of labor but does not believe in collective bargaining.

"I have not made one dollar out of the Bethlehem Steel Company," he said. "It has been a work of love. I hope I have been a pioneer in bettering the condition of labor."

He said the co-operative system adopted by his company is the ideal solution for the labor problem.

Schwab said he has not been active in the Bethlehem Mines Corporation except as an adviser for several years, and is not entirely familiar with conditions in the most recent strike.

"The solution for the labor problem is to take employees into the confidence of the employer," Schwab said. "You may be surprised to know that workers are the most important stockholders in the Bethlehem Steel Company. They own one-third of the preferred stock."

"We have not made the same strides in the mines. It is a more difficult task there. Frankly, the Bethlehem Steel Company would be glad to be out of the coal business."

"Mutual understanding between employers and employees will do more than sensational such as this. Sensational charges against employers and employees will accomplish nothing."

"I have never made one dollar out of the Bethlehem Steel Company. It has been a work of love. I hope I have left the conditions of the workers improved."

Schwab said he would be willing to meet with union officials and a senate committee to attempt a solution of the coal problem if he was not thereby "bound to any agreement."

"We have reports showing serious conditions in your town of Ellsworth, W. Va.," Senator Gooding said. "Do you know anything about that?"

"I can't believe it," Schwab replied, "but I shall find out. I shall go there myself. Our workers must be taken care of."

"I don't believe anything can be done and demand is still in force. We must get at the fundamental—understanding between employer and employee."

Schwab said present laws preventing co-ordination of industry are partly responsible for the condition of the coal industry.

PRESENTEDANOTHER NOTE FOUND, WRIT-TEN BY ONE OF TRAPPED MEN

Boston, March 23.—(UP)—The official story of the sinking of the S-4—one of the nation's great tragedies—probably will be ended today.

Investigators who went into the battered hull of the once great undersea craft—which sank after being rammed by the coast guard destroyer Paulding—expected to complete answers to the 250 questions presented them. An official report will be sent the navy department and then with burials of the last 8 men removed, the incident probably will be closed.

Yesterday the investigators found another note written by one of the crew, who while trapped in the undersea coffin awaited the noxious gas that eventually would cause death.

The note was written by Roger L. Short, Booneville, Mo., one of the six men in the torpedo room. It was on a small metal box, written in pencil, and read:

"In case of my death, please send entire contents of box to my mother, Mrs. M. G. Short, 804 Spring Street, Booneville, Mo. Roger L. Short."

There was no hint of those last hours when the man waited and prayed for rescue, and listened to their leader, Lieut. Graham Fitch, tap out pleading messages to the rescuers.

In the tin box was found two bank books and a bill fold containing $52, an express check book containing $30 in checks and $40 in cash. There were some medals and other personal belongings.

Short was serving his fourth enlistment when he died. He had been in service in the Mexican, Haitian and world war campaigns and once had been awarded a good conduct medal.

TENCE COMMUTED TO LIFE
IMPRISONMENTPAIR WERE CONVICTED OF KILL-ING A LACHINE TAXICAB
DRIVERBy JAMES R. KELLY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Valley Field, Que., March 23.—George McDonald was hanged on the flaming red gallows at Bordeaux prison at dawn today, paying with his life for a murder he and his wife both admitted.

The wife, Doris, escaped a like fate when her death sentence—which was to have been carried out simultaneously with that of her husband—was commuted to life imprisonment Wednesday. She was in her cell at the women's prison at Montreal as her husband calmly went to death.

They were convicted of killing Adelard Bouchard, a Lachine, Que., taxi-cab driver.

McDonald was executed at 5:37 A. M.

The execution had been planned for earlier in the morning but last minute rites, under the Canadian custom, delayed it for almost an hour.

The convicted man was calm and said he was ready for death. Only once yesterday did his composure break. That was when he was about to say a final goodbye to his 73-year-old father, Jack McDonald of Sydney, N. S.

They wept and finally had to be separated by guards.

The condemned man's entire family had been here to visit him. His mother and sister came from Portland, Me., and with the father left last night for Montreal, hoping to arrange some last minute reprieve.

Only the officials required for the execution were present. Even the jury was not permitted in the death chamber. The jury will be composed of local physicians. They will hold their inquest at 8 A. M.

Then the body was to be reclaimed by McDonald's family.

The McDonalds—George and Doris—came to Montreal last summer. They lived gaily here and George, authorities said, became involved in a series of petty crimes. He and his young wife decided to leave Canada.

They engaged Adelard Bouchard and were said to have told him: "Bring plenty of money for we are going on a long trip and you will need it for gas and the customs collectors."

Bouchard complied and was said to have had $800 in his pockets when he started on his last drive.

The next heard of the McDonalds was when they arrived at the Canadian border with a third man—never yet apprehended or identified—and were turned back by customs authorities. The customs officials noticed the McDonalds, particularly the young woman.

Then Bouchard's taxi-cab was found in Montreal. A search was started and the body of the taxi-cab driver was found in a ditch near the border.

The province was keenly excited. Bouchard had been well known. He had been popular among a certain clientele in Montreal and in Lachine, Que., his home town.

Provincial police circularized the continent with pictures of the McDonalds and finally at Butte, Mont., the man and woman were arrested. The second man was not with them.

They were taken to Denver and while awaiting extradition Mrs. McDonald told Bert Clark, a Denver detective, her version of the murder. She blamed the mysterious second man as the motivating agent of the murder and then told how, in order to make good escape, she killed the taxi-cab driver.

This confession subsequently was said to have led to a cooling of the ardor between McDonald and his young wife. He never quite forgave her for confessing, detectives said.

The two were brought here and tried. On December 17 they were found guilty and sentenced to death. Immediately there were pleas for clemency. The first of the pleas started in the United States and

On Thursday evening about 9 o'clock a band of young men gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Waldrop after they had retired. They rolled Mr. Waldrop out of bed and gave him a good flogging and he was ready to squeal and said afterwards that he was glad his birthday did not come but once a year. A lunch was served afterwards and Mr. Waldrop received a beautiful gift. It was a very pleasant affair.

"Pete" took the card and thanked the gentlemen profusely and gave him an elegant shave, but a few minutes afterwards one could have bought him for fifteen cents, when he was told Mrs. Brune had been here three days ago.

BRAINERD

25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

March 23, 1903

On Thursday evening about 9 o'clock a band of young men gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Waldrop after they had retired. They rolled Mr. Waldrop out of bed and gave him a good flogging and he was ready to squeal and said afterwards that he was glad his birthday did not come but once a year. A lunch was served afterwards and Mr. Waldrop received a beautiful gift. It was a very pleasant affair.

The boys are having some fun with Pete Cardie over the stall he got from one of the show men this morning, when he asked the thespian artist for a "Comp." The genial actor took out his card and wrote on the corner of it "Pass one, to Mrs. Bruhe performance in 'Unor-na'." "Pete" took the card and thanked the gentlemen profusely and gave him an elegant shave, but a few minutes afterwards one could have bought him for fifteen cents, when he was told Mrs. Bruhe had been here three days ago.

The members of the Brainerd Musical club are holding their first meeting at the home of Mrs. W. A. M. Johnstone this afternoon.

The J. R. C. gave a reception this afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. A. Wilson, on Fourth street North. The event was planned in honor of Mrs. Ida Forsythe who leaves for the west next week to join her husband. A beautiful cream spoon with "W. R. C. No. 47" engraved upon it was presented to Mrs. Forsythe.

Some surprise was caused today by the announcement that D. K. Laurie had resigned his position at the N. P. shops and will do Sunday school work at Crookston.

Mrs. Jollie Bonner Honor Guest

A beautifully decorated birthday cake formed the centerpiece for the 6 o'clock dinner given last evening in compliment to Mrs. Jollie Bonner, the occasion being her birthday, at the home of Mrs. L. E. Bedore, 402 Oak street. The evening was spent playing five hundred after which light refreshments were served. Among the guests were Mrs. G. R. Pratt, and sons Leo and Earl, Mrs. Paul Bernard, L. E. Bedore and sons, Charles and Earl. Out-of-town guests were Mrs. George Dike and sons, Lawrence and Chester, and Mrs. Jollie Bonner and daughter, Miss Josephine of California.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Wyett Entertain

The employees of the J. C. Penney Company were entertained at a hard time dress up party by Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Wyett at the store last evening. The costumes were humorous and clever and of a great variety. The evening was spent in dancing after which a delicious luncheon was served.

BRAINERD STAFF ACTS

Gives Entertainment at High School
Gymnasium Last Night

Just a lot of hokum but nevertheless so very good that the 600 students and visitors went home thoroughly happy after indulging in a priceless evening of laughter.

Old man gloom was chased, beaten and died far from the Brainerd high school auditorium last night as the Brainerd staff gave a lucky Brainerd audience a program so chucked full of fun, wholesome entertainment, that one feels quite satisfied with the world today.

Milford Downie who has acquired the chummy nickname of "Muff" by his classmates and those who know him well and enjoy his associations as editor of the Brainerd had more to do with the tremendous success of the evening than one would gain from a casual outlook of the program. He filled the position of chairman with a grace that is to be envied, and was a strong factor in the arranging of a more or less impromptu program that gained more earnest admiration than any of the previous programs at the school this season. Other members of the Brainerd staff were also instrumental in adding zest and tidbits of humor into an event that would ordinarily bring out the hearty applause of an appreciative audience.

Did you ever inquire regarding train connections at Nisswa? David Weber and Sylvia Erickson did last night but it was not because they planned to take an extended trip anywhere but only to be positive that there were no trains going south, north, east or west, thus insuring safe walking across the tracks. Richard Ebert supplied the answers to the train schedules as he lolled most comfortably in a chair on the platform. The scene came to an end in the dark and many in the audience were at a loss to know and anxious to find out just where Miss Erickson and Mr. Weber went after they crossed the track.

As the belle of Carrot Corner, Miss Mary Hughey made a hit, creating an impersonation of an individual of the country now fast fading into oblivion as time travels into a new world of style, characteristics, and personalities.

The male quartet featuring Misses Thelma Bowers, Hildegard Ersta, Josephine Graham, Margaret Gipsom with Miss Evelyn Marshall at the piano appeared in "Close Harmony". Their songs brought a hearty round of applause and enthusiasm.

Wendell Barnes as the Mystic Muligan tried vainly to escape from the fetters that bound him without success. His five seconds came to a close after some difficult maneuvering on his part to free himself. He was escorted off the stage by his manager Milford Downie who made a diplomatic apology to his audience for his understudy's failing, saying, "You can never depend on anything these days."

There was the ringer and the wringer and the mystery play found them both after a barrage of pistols cracking, flickering lights, gas house vernacular, and fast moving objects of the underworld. Don McNamara was possibly the only one who did not claim to be the ringer. Joe Greener, Irene Molstad, William McClenahan, Sylvia Erickson and Dale Sanders all had their part in the unravelling of a deep, dark, mystery plot.

Helen Marie Stadlbauer and Milford Downie were all by themselves, singing, and enjoying a piano seat tryst. Joe Greener's voice as it appeared over the radio had a soothing effect in preparing the children for their bedtime hour but it is possible that the same kiddies experienced nightmares as they dreamed of the hungry wolf pictures in Mr. Greener's version of the story.

B. Perry Newton has given many Indian war dances but last night's dance was possibly the most novel and modern one of them all. Imagine an Indian chief doing the shuffle and the opening of the program.

Dale Sanders as the sprightly youth and Milford Downie as the slender girl produced a warm summer night effect as they "anesthetized" in a spring song dance.

The high school orchestra under the direction of Miss Cora Rickard entertained the audience with a group of musical selections, before the opening of the program.

The "conscience" money was refused by Mr. Lippman but the couple insisted that he accept it. They returned to Brainerd today but upon their arrival unknown to them, they will find several dresses, wearing apparel for wife, husband and five children, sent there by Mr. Lippman.

Winnipeg, Man., March 23.—(UP)—Frederick Stoddard, alias Bennett, wanted at Walla Walla, Wash., on charges of rape and the attempted murder of 9-year old Mamie Torko, was arrested here today.

His arrest brought to a close an 11-year search for Stoddard, a paroled convict from the Walla Walla penitentiary. Stoddard, also known as Robert Ross alias H. F. McArdy alias Rogers, was termed by authorities as one of the shrewdest and most cunning criminals in America.

He is alleged to have committed the crime at Carbonado, Wash., Sept. 5, 1917.

RECOMMENDATIONS ABOUT ELECTION IN NICARAGUA

Washington, March 23.—(UP)—Recommendation that the Nicaraguan general election be supervised by civilian volunteers instead of military forces, made by Rep. Laguardia, (Repn., N. Y.), in a letter to Secretary Kellogg, precipitated a debate on the Nicaraguan situation when read in the house today.

Laguardia's letter said "universal suffrage and secret ballots are absolutely inconsistent with uniformed marines and fixed bayonets."

He said that by sending civilian supervisors the United States can render real service to the Nicaraguans, if they really desire assistance in their election as specifically asked for.

THANKS

We wish to express our thanks to the people of Brainerd and vicinity for the wonderful support that we have received since opening our new Grocery Department on Thursday last, and can assure you that we will endeavor at all times to serve you with the best grade of Groceries, Fruit and Vegetables obtainable at the very lowest price.

We do not think that it is good business to advertise and sell an article on Saturdays below cost, and make it up on some other article, therefore we will not advertise prices in this column but invite you to come to our store where you will find every article we handle is a special at all times.

We will use these columns from time to time to inform the public of our methods of doing business, realizing that the American people are wise enough to find out sooner or later that to remain in business a merchant must make a profit, if it is not on one thing it must be on some other.

We have been asked many times since opening if it is true that we are a Chain Store, and we wish to take this opportunity to tell the people of Crow Wing County that we are not a chain store, but belong to an organization much larger than most so-called Chain Store Organizations, with a wonderful buying power saving expense of salesmen, auditors, etc.

Again thanking you for your co-operation, and hoping that we will have the opportunity of continuing to serve you.

Famous German Actor Stirs Patrons By His Able Characterization in "The Last Command"

What is believed to be one of the most powerful dramas ever enacted on the American screen is now showing at the Lyceum theatre. Paramount's latest production starring the international and incomparable actor, Emil Jannings, in "The Last Command." It is superb.

A great warrior, mighty in power, beloved by his men; a traitor and a girl befriended by him; revolution, poverty, that in brief is the bare outline of Emil Jannings' second American made production, which closes its run tonight.

WE WELCOME SMALL ADVERTISEMENTS
BECAUSE THEY BRING US INTO BUSINESS

THANKS

We wish to express our thanks to the people of Brainerd and vicinity for the wonderful support that we have received since opening our new Grocery Department on Thursday last, and can assure you that we will endeavor at all times to serve you with the best grade of Groceries, Fruit and Vegetables obtainable at the very lowest price.

We do not think that it is good business to advertise and sell an article on Saturdays below cost, and make it up on some other article, therefore we will not advertise prices in this column but invite you to come to our store where you will find every article we handle is a special at all times.

We will use these columns from time to time to inform the public of our methods of doing business, realizing that the American people are wise enough to find out sooner or later that to remain in business a merchant must make a profit, if it is not on one thing it must be on some other.

We have been asked many times since opening if it is true that we are a Chain Store, and we wish to take this opportunity to tell the people of Crow Wing County that we are not a chain store, but belong to an organization much larger than most so-called Chain Store Organizations, with a wonderful buying power saving expense of salesmen, auditors, etc.

Again thanking you for your co-operation, and hoping that we will have the opportunity of continuing to serve you.

DEMOCRATIC PROGRESS IN JAPAN

DEMOCRACY is coming to Japan, says the Chicago Tribune. Under the old law the suffrage was limited to taxpayers and only some 3,000,000 citizens had the right to cast a vote. Under the new law male citizens 25 years old or over, able to read, write, and meet certain residence qualifications, are enfranchised. This liberalization of the ballot laws created ten million new voters and increased the electorate to approximately thirteen million. This is a long step toward popular government.

Japan, however, has a still longer road ahead of it, if complete democracy is its goal. On the eve of the recent election the home minister reproved the opposition party for its contention that the national diet, rather than the emperor, should dictate the choice of a prime minister and the members of the cabinet. That choice, the home minister proclaimed, lay with the emperor by divine right.

Imperial and kingly claims to divine elevation have gone out of style among the more completely democratic peoples. Britons do not think of George V placed on the throne by Deity. And in America we are willing to shoulder full responsibility for those that rule over us; we know, in some cases, that God would not be so unkind.

Another evidence that Japan is only beginning to emerge from a wholly autocratic state was the formal governmental warning that any newspaper mentioning police interference in the election would be suppressed. The press remained silent.

The progress of democracy in Japan is slow, but it cannot help being certain. The western example is strong. In the end Japan may be fortunate in having waited to follow. It should be able to avoid some of the mistakes into which western peoples have fallen in their rush to realize the human right to liberty, equality, and self-government.

RADIO CONTROL

THE Baltimore Sun remarks that it seems evident that the folk back home are having a good deal to do with the attitude of congress on radio control. Radio receivers are so omnipresent that candidates for congress feel compelled to "listen in" when there is complaint that the big centers of population have "hogged" the cream of the licenses and wave lengths.

The house, accordingly, has passed by a large majority a bill which, while extending the life of the Federal Radio commission a year, directs that power and wave length be allocated equally in the five zones.

There is basis for protest against some of the present inequalities in distribution of large stations, but conditions are greatly improved over those which existed prior to creation of the commission.

If its work has not been generally approved, the fact should be borne in mind that it was put in charge of a new industry, one in the experimental stage, and that any step toward bringing order out of chaos was sure to provoke dissatisfaction. There is certainly substantial ground for objection to a proposal that would disregard population to be served and financial ability of stations to broadcast programs which the public wishes to hear.

A BORROWED BOOK

A BORROWED book is like a guest in the house, says the Redwood Falls Gazette; it must be treated with punctiliousness, with a certain considerate formality.

You must see that it sustains no damage; it must not suffer while under your roof. You cannot leave it carelessly, you cannot mark it, you cannot turn down the pages, you cannot use it familiarly.

And then, some day, you really ought to return it. But your own books belong to you; you treat them with that affectionate intimacy that annihilates formality. Books are for use, not for show; you should own no books that you are afraid to mark up, or afraid to place on the table, wide open and face down.

A good reason for marking favorite passages in books is that this practice enables you to remember more easily the significant sayings, to refer to them quickly, and then in later years it is like visiting a forest where you once blazed a trail.

YOUNG PEOPLE LEARNING TO WORK

It is very important that young people learn to work. The earlier they start the better. It should not be work that will injure their health or deprive them of their just share of the pleasures of youth, but it should be work, real work. As they get older work becomes a pleasure and will soon grow into a habit.

A person who has acquired the habit of work will be saved from most of the troubles and the vexations of life. It is true that laziness is the root of all evil.

Young people often wonder why old folks who have all they need for this life do not retire and take it easy. They do not understand that such people work for the pleasure of it, and that the material gain is of secondary importance to them.—Milan Standard.

Now is a good time of the year to make a special effort to observe the indispensability of well placed snow fences for the best roads, says the Mabel Record. Note where great snowbanks still linger between the fence and the road which is already probably dusty. Think of the extent to which miserable mud is being avoided during the spring season because of the protection that the snow fence has afforded.

THE easiest way to turn a friend into an enemy is to allow him to become your debtor. America seems to have learned that lesson, just as have Owatonna merchants who have extended too much credit and Owatonna friends who have been too willing to loan.—Owatonna Journal-Chronicle.

If you have received your new 1928 auto license plates, but have not put them on, you had better get out the old pliers, take off the old plates and put on the new ones, suggests a State Highway bulletin. March 31 is the last day you can legally drive your car with the 1927 plates.

STATE AUDITOR RAY P. CHASE has announced that the state will offer 250,000 acres of state land located in the northern counties, during 1928 at public sale.

WILD MEN—RED AND WHITE—OF HISTORIC CROW WING

By C. H. BEAULIEU

(From Leon E. Lum collection)

NOTE—Reminiscences of early days are solicited by Crow Wing County Historical society. Write or see S. R. Adair, president or L. B. Kinder, historian.

Crow Wing and Fort Ripley were frontier outposts and therefore like all frontier places had their sins and yet had their heroes in good deeds and simple life, so we of modern days must praise as well as blame.

There were some quaint characters in the little village during the days of its existence.

There was Tom Cathcart, the man who rose from the position of mule driver for Baldwin Olmstead, the farmer, and innkeeper at the spot now known as Ripley, the place borrowing its name from its neighbor the old fort across the river. One word here about "Old Baldwin." Mr. Jonathan Dupus (Old Jonathan) lived on a farm at Platte river, he also entertained men and beast.

Perhaps because Jonathan and Baldwin were rival innkeepers the two loved not one another even though they lived miles apart, or perhaps individual idiosyncrasies jarred harshly; anyway the two did not even speak the one to the other. One evening Jonathan going northward had to stay all night at Baldwin's. He took supper within but slept in a stall in Baldwin's barn. The next morning, Baldwin asked his assistant if Jonathan had not been around. The reply was in the affirmative. "Where is he?" "In the barn where he slept last night." Take a sheet of paper and make out a bill as I shall tell you. And this is the form of "Old Baldwin's" bill: "To Baldwin Olmstead, Dr., for stabling one jackass—$1.00."

(Olmstead Bar in the river was named after him.—L. E. L.)

To return to Tom Cathcart. He had managed in some way to secure a government contract to build a road from Crow Wing to Leech Lake agency receiving therefor several thousands of dollars. It was a graft for he came out magnificently ahead. Then Tom appeared in the character of the idle rich. He foreswore all work and devoted himself to playing cards for the drinks day after day, retiring only when thoroughly soured. He built a hotel of fair proportions and made his friend, Dave Chapman, the landlord. Here Tom ate and slept, this and nothing more for he passed the hours at Bill Horne's and other places of bibularly amusement. Poor Tom, he drank himself to death and died on the verge of penury. His heart was right, his only enemy was himself. He was generous, he was kind, he was odd and his oddity consisted in attempted grandiloquence of speech. He possessed originality and created many humorous comparison and quaint epigrams. He once told "Old Spratt" that he had a noble brow. Said he, "Spratt, you're an intellectual man, you've got a forehead, it extends from your eyebrows to the nape of your neck." Spratt was bald, he had but a slight fringe of hair above the ears.

Then there was Tyler Chapman, the man slow of wit and of great hesitancy in speech. His slow brain and stuttering tongue with a faint habit of profanity made him also a wonder.

Then there was Dugal, the little French blacksmith who divided the year into two parts: for six months he would be sober and industrious, the other six would be spent in inebriety. He had the constitution of a behemoth, for after remaining drunk half a year he could arise some morning and proceed to work as if nothing had happened.

There was Tom Harding, hardly a permanent resident, yet a Crow Wingite. A lean, slab-sided Kentuckian who after discharge from soldiery at Fort Ripley after faithful service, strayed north. He was ready and quaint of speech whether drunk or sober. At one time Tom had been a ferryman at Watab on the Mississippi river. One night after he had retired comfortably in liquor, a person hailed him from the opposite shore. Said Tom, "What do you want?" "Want to get across." Oh, h—, go round," answered Tom. And there were others, noted in one way or another, even Joe Tasche, a man who was not a drinking man, but one day was enured although he held both bowers and the ace. (This was before the joker was invented.)

Grandpa Fairbanks kept the ferry at Crow Wing in ye olden days. He loved to read and when a patron came Grandpa grumbled and scolded him. He hated to be disturbed.

And then there was Lying Jack, known to polite circles as Mr. John Wellwood. It was currently reported that Jack came to Minnesota unwittingly. He hailed from Maine; when about to leave the state he asked for a ticket to some place in California. The ticket agent said, "You are such a liar I don't believe you want to go to California; here take this ticket to St. Paul, Minn." Jack took it, came to St. Paul and from there one day wandered to Crow Wing. Many others could be described, but space forbids.

Crow Wing has had its tragic as well as its humorous incidents. One (Continued on Page 6)

were directed against execution of a woman. It was pointed out the American girl would be the first to be executed in Quebec in 29 years. McDonald was held at Bordeaux prison where he scoffed at death and Mrs. McDonald at the women's prison in Montreal.

For a time they exchanged ardent love notes. Then these ceased. As time approached for the executions, Mrs. McDonald sought the solace of religion.

Then McDonald issued an affidavit in which he assumed all blame for the murder of Bouchard and said his wife had nothing to do with it.

On the night of March 20 the cabinet decided in favor of clemency for Mrs. McDonald. Her sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

Prigs were made to save McDonald—but these failed.

Montreal, Que., March 23.—The women's prison reflected nothing unusual today as word reached Montreal that George McDonald had been hanged for the murder of Adelard Bouchard.

Inside that prison was McDonald's young widow, Doris, an American girl. She was to have been executed with her husband this morning for the same murder—but her death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment Wednesday. She must spend the rest of her days in this prison unless announced efforts of her attorneys for a new trial are successful.

Thursday it was announced to the young woman that she had been saved. She became hysterical. "I want to die with George," she screamed.

Take a sheet of paper and make out a bill as I shall tell you. And this is the form of "Old Baldwin's" bill: "To Baldwin Olmstead, Dr., for stabling one Jackass—$1.00."

(Olmstead Bar in the river was named after him.—L. E. L.) To return to Tom Cathcart. He had managed in some way to secure a government contract to build a road from Crow Wing to Leech Lake agency receiving therefor several thousands of dollars. It was a graft for he came out magnificently ahead.

Then Tom appeared in the character of the idle rich. He foreswore all work and devoted himself to playing cards for the drinks day after day, retiring only when thoroughly soured. He built a hotel of fair proportions and made his friend, Dave Chapman, the landlord. Here Tom ate and slept, this and nothing more for he passed the hours at Bill Horne's and other places of bibularly amusement. Poor Tom, he drank himself to death and died on the verge of penury. His heart was right, his only enemy was himself. He was generous, he was kind, he was odd and his oddity consisted in attempted grandiloquence of speech. He possessed originality and created many humorous comparison and quaint epigrams. He once told "Old Spratt" that he had a noble brow. Said he, "Spratt, you're an intellectual man, you've got a forehead, it extends from your eyebrows to the nape of your neck." Spratt was bald, he had but a slight fringe of hair above the ears.

Then there was Tyler Chapman, the man slow of wit and of great hesitancy in speech. His slow brain and stuttering tongue with a faint habit of profanity made him also a wender.

Then there was Dugal, the little French blacksmith who divided the year into two parts: for six months he would be sober and industrious, the other six would be spent in inebriety. He had the constitution of a behemoth, for after remaining drunk half a year he could arise some morning and proceed to work as if nothing had happened.

There was Tom Harding, hardly a permanent resident, yet a Crow Wingite. A lean, slabsided Kentuckian who after discharge from soldiery at Fort Ripley after faithful service, strayed north. He was ready and quaint of speech whether drunk or sober. At one time Tom had been a ferryman at Watab on the Mississippi river. One night after he had retired comfortably in liquor, a person hailed him from the opposite shore. Said Tom, "What do you want?" "Want to get across." Oh, h—, go round," answered Tom.

And there were others, noted in one way or another, even Joe Tschernault who was not a drinking man, but one day was enchered although he held both bowers and the ace. (This was before the joker was invented.)

Grandpa Fairbanks kept the ferry at Crow Wing in ye olden days. He loved to read and when a patron came Grandpa grumbled and scolded him. He hated to be disturbed.

And then there was Lying Jack, known to polite circles as Mr. John Wellwood. It was currently reported that Jack came to Minnesota unwittingly. He hailed from Maine; when about to leave the state he asked for a ticket to some place in California. The ticket agent said, "You are such a liar I don't believe you want to go to California; here take this ticket to St. Paul, Minn." Jack took it, came to St. Paul and from there one day wandered to Crow Wing. Many others could be described, but space forbids.

Crow Wing has had its tragic as well as its humorous incidents. One (Continued on Page 6)

DEPUTY MARSHALS IN SEARCH FOR WILBUR W. MARSH

Chicago, March 23.—(U.P.)—Deputy U. S. marshals boarded all trains arriving in Chicago from the east last night but found no trace of Wilbur W. Marsh, former treasurer of the democratic national committee, on whom they wished to serve a subpoena issued by the New York federal grand jury. The New York body ordered Marsh to produce all records of democratic campaign contributions in 1918-1921.

were directed against execution of a woman. It was pointed out the American girl would be the first to be executed in Quebec in 29 years. McDonald was held at Bordeaux prison where he scoffed at death and Mrs. McDonald at the women's prison in Montreal.

For a time they exchanged ardent love notes. Then these ceased. As time approached for the executions, Mrs. McDonald sought the solace of religion.

Then McDonald issued an affidavit in which he assumed all blame for the murder of Bouchard and said his wife had nothing to do with it.

On the night of March 20 the cabinet decided in favor of clemency for Mrs. McDonald. Her sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

Pleas were made to save McDonald—but these failed.

Montreal, Que., March 23.—The women's prison reflected nothing unusual today as word reached Montreal that George McDonald had been hanged for the murder of Adelard Bouchard.

Inside that prison was McDonald's young widow, Doris, an American girl. She was to have been executed with her husband this morning for the same murder—but her death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment Wednesday. She must spend the rest of her days in this prison unless announced efforts of her attorneys for a new trial are successful.

Thursday it was announced to the young woman that she had been saved. She became hysterical. "I want to die with George," she screamed.

It took an overtime period to enable the Sophomores to win from the Freshmen, 10 to 9, last night and thereby gain the interclass championship pennant in basketball.

A large crowd of customers enjoyed the Brainonian "vodvil" which ran two hours. During that time the Freshmen squad sat nervously in the basement and awaited the call to play. Two hours is a long time to wait. In the first half the Freshmen played dizzily and were bombarded by the Sophomores who corraled three baskets and two free throws.

Figures for the first quarter: Freshmen 0, Sophomores 1. Second quarter: Freshmen 1, Sophomores 8. Third quarter: Freshmen 5, Sophomores 8. And the final: Freshmen 9, Sophomores 9.

Then came the overtime with honors about even until Geist slipped in a free throw, foul on Nelson, and knotted the count 10 to 9 in favor of the Sophomores.

Excellent guarding on both sides reduced the number of baskets. The Freshmen had as their mentor Frank Wise. The Sophomores were coached by Swanson.

The winning streak of the Alderman-Maghan five was suddenly checked last night when the Peterson Clothing Company defeated them decisively in three games.

The Alderman-Maghan quintette seemed unable to find themselves. Mrs. Block was the high pin roller for her team.

In the other games the Northern States Power Company came back after losing the starting game to win two from the Lively Auto Company.

Special preparations are being made for the bowling games at the alleys this evening.

Two matches of great importance are to be rolled. Elks No. 1 and Elks No. 2 meet on alleys 3 and 4, and the Brainerd Machine Co. meets the Bye Clothing Co. on alleys 1 and 2.

The alleys are specially decorated with the Elks colors and the galleries will be filled with rooters. Noise makers and megaphones will be in order.

The games tonight are important because the Alderman-Maghan team, leaders of the league, were defeated three straight last night by the Peterson Clothing Company and all of the teams rolling tonight have chances of going into either first, second or third place.

UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

It is so long since a knockout wallop has found its way into the lightweight division and approached to within striking distance of the champion's chin that the McLarnin-Mandell bout in May will provide a unique thrill for many of the current generation of fight fans.

The last time a knockout wallop was waved at a champion's whiskers was five years ago, come July, when Benny Leonard and Lew Tendler fought their memorable battle at the Polo Grounds, New York.

Tendler had a real punch and Leonard was not afraid of it, which made their last scrap a thriller and drew a record gate for the lightweight division—$452,648.00.

After Leonard retired, the 135-pound division sank into obscurity. Its champions were "cheese champions," in the opinion of the fans, whose opinion was reflected in the gate receipts.

Sammy Mandell may not be a "cheese champion," but he certainly has been what the lads of my youth would have recognized as a "cheese it" champion. Every time a real challenger showed up, in the years Mandell held the title, Eddie Kane would cry: "Cheese it!" and he and Sammy would pack off to the provinces to take on a row of set-ups at $1.00 per set.

If Mandell is better than he has led the fans to believe, it is his own fault that they do not know it.

Jimmy McLarnin is not the first lightweight in the past three years to possess a wallop of morphean intensity. But the "Belfast Spider" is the first to bring the punch within arm's length of Sammy's regal chin.

On the night of May 17, McLarnin will wave his knockout wallop under Mandell's nose, and make him like it. The Polo Grounds probably will be packed as never before for the auspicious occasion. There may even be a few process servers, sheriffs and machine-gunners representing Jim Mullen of Chicago, but that will be a matter for Johnny Broderick, head socker of the "Strong Arm" squad, to attend to.

There are many who believe that the baby-faced youngster from the Pacific Coast will "take" the champion, just as Jimmy "took" Sid Terris in Madison Square Garden the other night. If this happens, Mandell will have been well rewarded for his sovereignty. Sammy's end of the purse should be $150,000 or more, and it is McLarnin's wallop that will make it so.

Had Mandell come to New York to meet Sid Terris, the Galloping Ghost of the Ghetto, the gate receipts would have been nothing to write to the internal revenue about. Sidneh, although a Jew and a local boy, was too well known as a galloper to be a real gate attraction. It is the wallop that brings in the customers.

Jimmy McLarnin has put new life in the lightweight division, but his personality and cleverness would have been wasted without his punch to back them up.

Mandell may fool the customers and defeat McLarnin. Sammy has been doing a lot of boxing, in and out of his class, with second raters from coast to coast. Sammy's record for 1927, a year in which he was damned up and down by the fans for his inactivity, shows that the champion fought 13 regular 10 or 12 round fights, winning three by knockouts, and eight decisions, the remaining two being no-decision bouts.

This year, Mandell took on Billy Petrolle, the Fargo Express, in January at Minneapolis and won the decision. Petrolle had Sammy in trouble in the eighth, but the champion won, and now declares himself ready for McLarnin.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 23.—

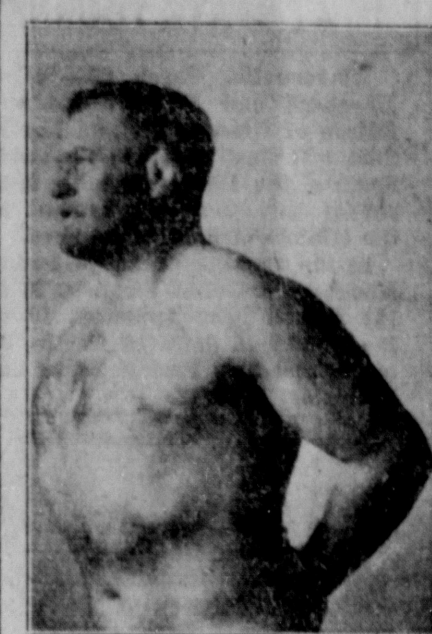

"I really believe that the Yankees are stronger than they were last year," Miller Huggins, diminutive manager of the world's champions, told the United Press in an exclusive interview today.

"But," he added promptly, "I do not look forward to anything like the runaway we enjoyed in 1927."

The shrewd little pilot who has steered the New York Yankees to five American League pennants in the past seven seasons, a record unequalled in the history of the national pastime, feels confident that this year means just another triumph for his club.

"We have improved all down the line," said Huggins, "and I still believe we have the best ball club in baseball."

"We have at least three fielders who are going to do a lot better this season than last. Tony Lazzeri, Mark Koenig and Lou Gehrig still are in that stage of development in which an extra year's experience means a great deal. Lazzeri, in particular, is going to be an improved ball player. As for Gehrig, he learned certain tricks of hitting last season and is bound to perfect them."

Whose strength and ability as a wrestler is known throughout the northwest. He will appear in the headline bout of the Legion card at the U. C. T. auditorium tomorrow night clashing with Buck Olson, 200 pounds.

ting last season and is bound to perfect them.

"Opposition? Well, I think we may expect our strongest opposition from the Athletics, who will be helped greatly by Speaker and Cobb and who have picked up quite a nice pitcher in Ossie Orwell, who was with Milwaukee last season."

"The Senators look better than last year and they, too, should make things interesting. With these two contenders improved, the race should be tighter, but don't overlook our own improvement."

"Take the matter of reserve material. Gene Robertson is a great safeguard around third, and he will be used at second, too, if the need arises."

"Leo Durocher will take the place of Johnny Morehart."

The pitching staff on the world's champions has been criticized as weak, Huggins admitted.

"I think we still have the pitching," he argued. "A great deal depends upon it, of course. We have released Reuther and Shawkey, and Shocker, a great spit-ball pitcher of particular effectiveness in the spring, has retired. In their places, we have Stan Coveleskie, Henry Johnson and Al Shealy."

"Covey, I believe, will do well. Then there is Pipgras, ready to take his regular turn, and Myles Thomas, about due to work steadily."

SEN. SCHALL AT

FEW DAYS' VISIT

Minneapolis, March 24.—(U.P.)—Senator Thomas D. Schall arrived here last night for a several days' visit. His visit, he said, had no political significance and he does not intend to take part in the republican convention at St. Paul Saturday.

Senator Schall's choice for president is Vice President Dawes, he told interviewers. He expressed the belief that the McNary-Haugen bill would pass the house in virtually the same form as reported by the house agricultural committee.

As ascertained by the mail he receives, Sen. Schall said Minnesota voters were extremely interested in conservation. He said sufficient protests have been made against the proposed change in border water levels to compel congress to adopt a resolution preventing the construction of reservoirs as proposed by power companies.

Sen. Schall was accompanied by his wife.

"But," he added promptly, "I do not look forward to anything like the runaway we enjoyed in 1927."

The shrewd little pilot who has steered the New York Yankees to five American League pennants in the past seven seasons, a record unequalled in the history of the national pastime, feels confident that this year means just another triumph for his club.

"We have improved all down the line," said Huggins, "and I still believe we have the best ball club in baseball."

"We have at least three fielders who are going to do a lot better this season than last. Tony Lazzeri, Mark Koenig and Lou Gehrig still are in that stage of development in which an extra year's experience means a great deal. Lazzeri, in particular, is going to be an improved ball player. As for Gehrig, he learned certain tricks of hitting last season and is bound to perfect them."

Big Bill Beth, 210 Pounds

Whose strength and ability as a wrestler is known throughout the northwest. He will appear in the headline bout of the Legion card at the U. C. T. auditorium tomorrow night clashing with Buck Olson, 200 pounds.

ting last season and is bound to perfect them.

"Opposition? Well, I think we may expect our strongest opposition from the Athletics, who will be helped greatly by Speaker and Cobb and who have picked up quite a nice pitcher in Ossie Orwoll, who was with Milwaukee last season."

"The Senators look better than last year and they, too, should make things interesting. With these two contenders improved, the race should be tighter, but don't overlook our own improvement."

"Take the matter of reserve material. Gene Robertson is a great safeguard around third, and he will be used at second, too, if the need arises."

"Leo Durocher will take the place of Johnny Morhart."

The pitching staff on the world's champions has been criticized as weak, Huggins admitted.

"I think we still have the pitching," he argued. "A great deal depends upon it, of course. We have released Reuther and Shawkey, and Shocker, a great spit-ball pitcher of particular effectiveness in the spring, has retired. In their places, we have Stan Coveleskie, Henry Johnson and Al Shealy."

"Covey, I believe, will do well. Then there is Pipgras, ready to take his regular turn, and Myles Thomas, about due to work steadily."

SEN. SCHALL AT MILL CITY FOR FEW DAYS' VISIT

Minneapolis, March 24.—(U.P.)—Senator Thomas D. Schall arrived here last night for a several days' visit. His visit, he said, had no political significance and he does not intend to take part in the republican convention at St. Paul Saturday.

Senator Schall's choice for president is Vice President Dawes, he told interviewers. He expressed the belief that the McNary-Haugen bill would pass the house in virtually the same form as reported by the house agricultural committee.

As ascertained by the mail he receives, Sen. Schall said Minnesota voters were extremely interested in conservation. He said sufficient protests have been made against the proposed change in border water levels to compel congress to adopt a resolution preventing the construction of reservoirs as proposed by power companies.

Sen. Schall was accompanied by his wife.

night the villagers were awakened by a report of guns upon the island. The morning brought to sight the corpses of an old man and others (camping Indians) with gory bald spots upon their heads from which had been torn the scalps by a war party of Sioux, a tribe at that time on the war path with the Chippewas. Then there was the day when lawlessness reigned for a few days, when Monnell, Whiskey Jack and Jerry Selkirk attempted serious arson.

And it also had a great historical event in the early sixties. Hole-in-the-day, the noted Chippewa chief, attempted a rebellion. It is now charitably spoken of by the old timers as Hole-in-the-day-emeute. It was this wise:

The republican party had come into power by the election of Mr. Lincoln to the presidency. A general shuffling in political patronage arose. A new Indian agent was appointed. Hole-in-the-day had two residences, one upon the reservation near the agency, another and a fine one upon his section of land bordering the village of Crow Wing. At the latter he lived at the time the new agent was appointed. He had been courted by the old agents and stood in happy relations with them and the office at Washington. In some way the happy relations with the agency was broken off and there followed coldness in Washington. It afterwards developed that Hole-in-the-day had cause for his animosity towards the agent, for he began to follow the fashions early. It had always been the way for an agent to steal more or less, but it had been done with finesse and generosity towards Hole-in-the-day. The new agent began dishonestly at once and did not evidently give an honorarium to Hole-in-the-day. Naturally trouble broke out, and Hole-in-the-day took offense against the whole country and began to plot war. He was suspected and the commandant at Ft. Ripley on the request of the interior department, was ordered to arrest him.

One day he was coming into the village with a henchman on foot. He sent his man ahead to see if matters were safe and himself stopped at the outskirts of the village. A lieutenant with about ten privates came to the village at the same time. They arrested the henchman and ordered him to lead them to the Hole-in-the-day residence. Hole-in-the-day had seen them coming and immediately ran towards home. He embarked his family on his private ferry boat and all got across just as the soldiers arrived. Seeing him, the lieutenant ordered him to return, the order was disobeyed, then he was fired upon, and Hole-in-the-day returned the fire, and with a whoop of defiance disappeared into the woods. Within a few days he had hundreds of armed Indians under his command. There had been taken white prisoners at Leech Lake; alarm had spread and from all points north, the whites fled to Crow Wing. This was in the year of 1862. The Indians of Mille Lac were the only ones that remained loyal. Old Sha-Bash-Kung with a large retinue came to Fort Ripley and proffered his services to the commandant. Hole-in-the-day had in the meantime encamped with his army about three miles north of Crow Wing, so conditions were threatening. The agency people had fled to St. Paul, the agent, Mr. Walker, committing suicide on the way. Washington began with endeavors to conciliate and appointed Judge Cooper of St. Paul, a personal friend of Hole-in-the-day's, to parley with him. The judge came to Crow Wing and Mrs. Cooper accompanied him. They were guests at Mr. Beaulieu's. One day the judge and Mrs. Cooper with Beaulieu started to interview Hole-in-the-day. The ferry rope having been cut the party was forced to ford the river which fortunately was possible owing to the great drouth that year. The reason for the accompaniment of Mrs. Cooper was to assure Hole-in-the-day of the judge's perfect faith. Hole-in-the-day declined to yield, the prisoners were released however through the consent of the village chiefs for the prisoners were virtually theirs, they having been captured at Leech Lake. Hon. Assistant Secretary of the Interior whose name I have forgotten, and Mr. Nicolay (Note Nicolay and Hays' Life of Lincoln—L. E. L.) private secretary of the president, came to Crow Wing and became also the guests of Mr. Beaulieu. A company of the 8th Minn. Regiment was sent from Fort Ripley to Crow Wing and remained there until the emeute had been quelled. Indian Commissioner Dole finally came and it was arranged that Hole-in-the-day and the chiefs should meet him at Crow Wing. All the civilians were armed and two, Sylvester Statlar and Peter Kelly, received orders to shoot Hole-in-the-day if the least disturbance arose. In order to prevent suspicion the soldiers were not required to be at the council but they being in camp within hailing distance they could have easily been employed had difficulty arisen. Hole-in-the-day appeared with the other chiefs upon the hour and day appointed yet not unprotected, for with great strategy he had sent his army to cross the river north of the village and suddenly the village found itself completely surrounded. Commissioner Dole showed himself to be a poor diplomat, he showed physical fear for he trembled like a leaf, he flattered and coaxed and the result was that the interview ended in a failure. Soon Senator Ramsey came duly authorized by the interior department to act with authority. At one time he had been territorial governor and ex-officio superintendent of Indians within the territory. He knew Hole-in-the-day personally as well as the other chiefs. Hole-in-the-day remained obdurate but the other chiefs proved amenable to reason so at the interview lasting the greater part of the day, trouble was quieted. The chiefs, except Hole-in-the-day, agreed to the terms of Senator Ramsey and thus the emeute ended, and Hole-in-the-day was vanquished. Under the terms, the chiefs went to Washington, effected treaties, ceded lands and a new era began. The agency was abandoned in 1869 and the White Earth reservation established in 1868. Crow Wing and its vicinity became the white man's land in all respects.

In 1869 Hole-in-the-day one day was in the village with Ojibway. His residence by the village had been burned during the emeute by some unknown person, and he had taken up residence at his other home on the reservation. On the day previously mentioned while on his return home with Ojibway he was waylaid and murdered by a band of Pillager Indians. His body was brought to Crow Wing and buried in the Catholic churchyard although still a pagan. He had always professed admiration for the Roman Catholic church, had his children baptized in the faith, and made promises that he himself would join as soon as he could "get around to it."

Hole-in-the-day had his faults but all in all, he was a wonderful man and he will live in history as an able shrewd and brainy man.

(Mr. Beaulieu is the Rev. C. H. Beaulieu who has preached in Brainerd.—L. E. L.)

BOYS, GIRLS CLUB SETS NEW HEIGHTS

Record Year Assured as Organization
Work Goes Over
Strong
OVER 300 MEMBERS

Busy Fall Program Will Climax
Year of Activity

The organization of boys and girls club work in Crow Wing county this year is the largest for many years, County Agent E. G. Roth reported today.

With several clubs in district schools still to organize, more than 300 boys and girls have already enrolled. Crosby-Intanton schools have over 100 enrollment, Emily school more than 20, Fifty Lakes, 15, Pequot, 60, Oak Lawn, 35, Center, 15, Deerwood, 35, and miscellaneous enrollment, 75.

The Brainerd Lions club who are sponsoring a dairy calf club will have over 30 boys and girls for that project. The Crosby Commercial club who are also sponsoring Boys and Girls Calf club work will have over 40 members. There will be 25 in the calf club around Pequot.

Special fairs for boys and girls club work will be held at Brainerd, Crosby-Intanton and Pequot this fall at which time prizes will be awarded the winners.

The Pequot fair association will hold a boys and girls club camp at the fair this fall, furnishing housing and meals for all club members for three days. The directors are setting aside $200 for club work premiums. The boys and girls club booths will take the place of the regular farm club booths. Prizes range from $25 for first, $15 for second and $10 for third.

Some 20 boys and girls will receive free trips to the state fair this year. With an enrollment of 35 or more in the calf club work in this county, one boy or girl will receive a trip, one boy or girl will receive a trip to the Chicago Livestock Show in November. In addition one boy or girl will receive a trip all expenses paid to the National Dairy Show at Memphis, Tenn.

Interest in the work is reaching high tide with indication that the year 1928 will not only be the greatest but a record year for future years to pattern after.

T. A. Erickson, state boys and girls club specialist was in the city the past two days assisting Mr. Roth in the organization.

tise Heavily in Newspapers

From nine stores January 1st 1927 to twenty-seven stores at the present time is the marvelous record of expansion made by the Gamble stores, now operating in five states. In addition to this number of stores, leases have been made and merchandise purchased for five additional stores which will be opened within the next thirty days. By the end of this year the line of Gamble stores will number fifty. A new store is now being opened every two weeks.

F. R. Jennings, manager of the Brainerd store states, "One million catalogs will be distributed this year in addition to a large amount of daily newspaper advertising. The company expects to do a business this year totaling between two and two and one-half million dollars." Every manager is financially interested in the store he conducts.

"Myskinwas a sight"

"I couldn't look people in the face. I was so ashamed of my skin! It was always blotched with pimples and blackheads and at times itched terribly. I had tried everything and was so discouraged that I couldn't bring myself to take hope in anything. You can imagine my surprise therefore when one application of Rowles Mentho Sulphur almost completely cleared my skin. I could have danced with joy! In a short time you wouldn't know my skin—it was so clear, so soft and white." Thousands of people are discovering that there is a remedy for skin trouble—even fiery, itching eczema! It's the magical combination of sulphur and menthol—sulphur for clearing the skin, menthol for healing the broken and irritated tissue. Rowles Mentho Sulphur is inexpensive and all druggists supply it in jars ready to use. Be sure it's Rowles.

Managers of new stores are selected from among the employees when they are permitted to purchase stock and become a partner in the company.

Since the company started business it has been known as the Gamble Auto Supply Co., but several additional lines have been added and the company is changing its name to Gamble Stores, Inc. The lines added to its auto supplies are radio and radio supplies, hardware, electrical appliances and supplies and sporting goods.

BOYS, GIRLS CLUB SETS NEW HEIGHTS

Record Year Assured as Organization
Work Goes Over
Strong
OVER 300 MEMBERS

Busy Fall Program Will Climax
Year of Activity

The organization of boys and girls club work in Crow Wing county this year is the largest for many years, County Agent E. G. Roth reported today.

With several clubs in district schools still to organize, more than 300 boys and girls have already enrolled. Crosby-Ironton schools have over 100 enrollment, Emily school more than 20, Fifty Lakes, 15, Pequot, 60, Oak Lawn, 35, Center, 15, Deerwood, 35, and miscellaneous enrollment, 75.

The Brainerd Lions club who are sponsoring a dairy calf club will have over 30 boys and girls for that project. The Crosby Commercial club who are also sponsoring Boys and Girls Calf club work will have over 40 members. There will be 25 in the calf club around Pequot.

Special fairs for boys and girls club work will be held at Brainerd, Crosby-Ironton and Pequot this fall at which time prizes will be awarded the winners.

The Pequot fair association will hold a boys and girls club camp at the fair this fall, furnishing housing and meals for all club members for three days. The directors are setting aside $200 for club work premiums. The boys and girls club booths will take the place of the regular farm club booths. Prizes range from $25 for first, $15 for second and $10 for third.

Some 20 boys and girls will receive free trips to the state fair this year. With an enrollment of 35 or more in the calf club work in this county, one boy or girl will receive a trip all expenses paid to the Chicago Livestock Show in November. In addition one boy or girl will receive a trip all expenses paid to the National Dairy Show at Memphis, Tenn.

Interest in the work is reaching high tide with indication that the year 1928 will not only be the greatest but a record year for future years to pattern after.

T. A. Erickson, state boys and girls club specialist was in the city the past two days assisting Mr. Roth in the organization.

NEW YORK BOXING BODY ON TUNNEY CASE

PROPOSES TO CENSURE CHAMPION FOR NOT MINDING RULES

TUNNEY'S LICENSE TO BOX IN STATE EXPIRED LAST AUGUST

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)
New York, March 23.—(U.P.)—The New York boxing commission, today scraped up its chairs, shot its cuffs, adjusted its specs, coughed impressively and proceeded to take up for consideration the case of James Joseph Tunney, world's heavyweight champion.

Taking things up for consideration is the favorite pastime of this serious minded trio once rudely referred to as the three dumb dukes. Laying things on the table comes next.

On this occasion, the commission proposed to censure Tunney because he had failed to comply with its regulations and sign to meet a stipulated opponent in defense of his title within six months of his last championship fight.

It is true that Tunney had consented to meet anyone chosen by Tex Rickard, and had given his consent within the required period, but the rules of the boxing commission do not allow for Tex Rickard. He is the exception that proves the rule.

Since Gene Tunney is Billy Muldoon's pet, it was certain that the commission which still is dominated by the thunder of the old Roman would not be too harsh with the champion.

Moreover, at the eleventh hour, it was discovered that Tunney's license to box in New York State had expired last August, so the board had no opportunity to suspend Gene, even if it wished to do so.

There remained the option of placing the champion upon the ineligible list. This maneuver was resorted to in the case of Jack Dempsey when Chairman Jim Farley was trying to force Jack into a match with Harry Wills.

Meanwhile, no one regards very seriously anything the boxing commission may decide to do by way of censure where Gene Tunney is concerned.

The talk in boxing circles was concerned, rather, with the identity of the champion's next opponent. One group said Paolino Uzcudun, who has agreed to meet George Godfrey at Ebbets Field early in May, would be chosen as challenger, provided he erased the Lieperville ink spot. Another group insisted Godfrey himself would loom as the inevitable choice after George had bounced the Basque about as handily as he did on the Pacific slopes.

Tom Heeney, the brawny, ruddy blacksmith from "down under," continued a favorite in the early wagers on Tex Rickard's decision. Jack Sharkey, Johnny Risko and Jack Delaney were bunched some distance behind.

One of Rickard's proposed championship bouts has fallen through. Ace Hudkins of Nebraska insists that he hurt both paws in clawing Sammy Baker over in Madison Square Garden last month, and that he cannot go through with his engagement with Welter Champ Joe Dundee of Baltimore on April 30.

Johnny Buckley, manager of Jack Sharkey, is due in town today to talk over with Rickard's matchmaker, Jess McMahon, a proposal to put on a match with Jack and Jack Delaney.

NEW YORK BOXING BODY ON TUNNEY CASE

PROPOSES TO CENSURE CHAMPION FOR NOT MINDING RULES

TUNNEY'S LICENSE TO BOX IN STATE EXPIRED LAST AUGUST

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)
New York, March 23.—(AP)—The New York boxing commission, today scraped up its chairs, shot its cuffs, adjusted its specs, coughed impressively and proceeded to take up for consideration the case of James Joseph Tunney, world's heavyweight champion.

Taking things up for consideration is the favorite pastime of this serious minded trio once rudely referred to as the three dumb dukes. Laying things on the table comes next.

On this occasion, the commission proposed to censure Tunney because he had failed to comply with its regulations and sign to meet a stipulated opponent in defense of his title within six months of his last championship fight.

It is true that Tunney had consented to meet anyone chosen by Tex Rickard, and had given his consent within the required period, but the rules of the boxing commission do not allow for Tex Rickard. He is the exception that proves the rule.

Since Gene Tunney is Billy Muldoon's pet, it was certain that the commission which still is dominated by the thunder of the old Roman would not be too harsh with the champion.

Moreover, at the eleventh hour, it was discovered that Tunney's license to box in New York State had expired last August, so the board had no opportunity to suspend Gene, even if it wished to do so.

There remained the option of placing the champion upon the ineligible list. This maneuver was resorted to in the case of Jack Dempsey when Chairman Jim Farley was trying to force Jack into a match with Harry Wills.

Meanwhile, no one regards very seriously anything the boxing commission may decide to do by way of censure where Gene Tunney is concerned.

The talk in boxing circles was concerned, rather, with the identity of the champion's next opponent. One group said Basilio Uzcudun, who has agreed to meet George Godfrey at Ebbets Field early in May, would be chosen as challenger, provided he erased the Lieperville ink spot. Another group insisted Godfrey himself would loom as the inevitable choice after George had bounced the Basque about as handily as he did on the Pacific slopes.

Tom Heeney, the brawny, ruddy blacksmith from "down under," continued a favorite in the early waging on Tex Rickard's decision. Jack Sharkey, Johnny Risko and Jack Delaney were bunched some distance behind.

One of Rickard's proposed championship bouts has fallen through. Ace Hudkins of Nebraska insists that he hurt both paws in clawing Sammy Baker over in Madison Square Garden last month, and that he cannot go through with his engagement with Welter Champ Joe Dundee of Baltimore on April 30.

Johnny Buckley, manager of Jack Sharkey, is due in town today to talk over with Rickard's matchmaker, Jess McMahon, a proposal to put on a match with Jack and Jack Delaney.

This Smart Sedan with Royal Equipment
now reduced in price to $1660

It's astonishing—how much style and luxury this big Advanced Six model brings you at so low a factory price. Royal equipment means six sparkling wire wheels, two of them mounted smartly on either side. Two extra tires and tubes. And a convenient trunk rack at the rear. At least $200 worth of additional equipment to add new snap and style to your motoring.

You have your choice of three distinctive color schemes—Nash Blue, Green-Gray or Arcadian Blue. There's inlaid paneling of genuine walnut inside, rich mohair velvet upholstery. Deeply tufted, smartly tailored cushions. Silver finished interiorware. And the motor has 7 bearings, of course. It's a Nash!
